

Glen Scotia 25-YO awarded

Glen Scotia 25-Year-Old single malt whisky has been recognised as the 'Best in Show' at this year's San Francisco World Spirits Competition (SFWSC), with judges awarding the single malt whisky from Campbeltown, one of the smallest Scotch whisky regions in Scotland, as the overall winner of the competition, and therefore The Best Whisky in The World in 2021.

Campbeltown, although Scotland's smallest whisky producing region today, in its heyday during the Victorian era was known as 'The Whisky Capital of the World' and was home to more than 30 distilleries. Glen Scotia is one of the three surviving distilleries in Campbeltown.

This year, SFWSC judged 3800 entrants across 31 separate categories, with Glen Scotia 25-Year-Old ultimately being named as Best in Show Whisky, which makes it get adjudged as the best whisky in the world in 2021, in the competition.

SFWSC is one of the world's most prestigious spirits competitions. Its judges are renowned experts in their fields with decades of industry experience. The competition began in 2000, making it the second oldest spirits competition in the world, and the oldest and largest spirits competition in the US.

Iain McAlister, Master Distiller, Glen Scotia Distillery, said, "To receive such outstanding recognition and be awarded as 'Best in Show' at this prestigious competition is an honour, and a tremendous boost to the entire team here at Glen Scotia distillery."

The taste of Glen Scotia 25-Year-Old reflects

red apple and tangy orange peel with vanilla syrup and caramel sweetness. Its finish has long lingering sea salt with a spicy note of ground ginger.

The Glen Scotia 25-Year-Old (comes at 70cl) is endowed with 48.8 percent ABV and it has collected a number of prestigious awards over the years.

However, Glen Scotia 25-Year-Old wasn't the only whisky from the distillery to receive an award at this year's competition with the Glen Scotia 10 Year Old collecting a Double Gold Medal, the Glen Scotia 15 Year Old getting a gold medal, and Glen Scotia Harbour Single Malt picking up a silver medal at the competition.

The Glen Scotia 25-Year-Old is available for purchase at www.glenscotia.com, priced at £400. S